

A Day in the Life of a GOOGLE Employee

Peninsula College Fund was a private tour at the Google View, CA on Friday, April 21, only possible because of the support of the Palo Alto day's learning focused on evolution and current place started with a tour of the lunch at Google's open café about the Google culture and being part of the Google given the opportunity to attend Headquarters in Mountain 2017. This opportunity was generous donation and University Rotary Club. The Google's rich history, its in the marketplace. The day campus and concluded with where scholars learned more the many opportunities for team.

Testimonials

I really enjoyed having the opportunity to see what a typical work environment might look like at one of the biggest technology companies in Silicon Valley. I enjoyed eating lunch among other employees as it gave me some insights into what the atmosphere might look like if I worked at Google. I enjoyed meeting our guide as he provided insights about professional life and where I might be able to apply my current and future skills in life after college.

Luis Del Rosario
Freshman, San Jose State University

I learned a lot about what it's like to work at Google, had no idea it was such an entrepreneurial environment. I learned about various career paths I didn't know existed and how many opportunities there are at Google for professional and personal growth through networking and career development.

Jocelyn Morales
Senior, Notre Dame de Namur University

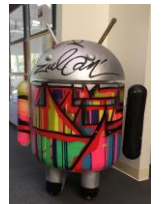

My time at Google may have been short but the impact it had on me will last me for many years. I learned that no matter what it is that you do, if you lead with passion and do your best people will notice. I was encouraged by Google's collaborative environment, as it seems like the employees are driven and are inclusive. I would love to work for Google because of the creative and positive vibe everyone exhibits.

Eric Ramirez
PCF Scholar Graduate, CSU Northridge

I really enjoyed learning more about the history of Google and how it is continuing to evolve. Google's a great company and has a lot to offer their employees and would be a fun place to work. Our tour guide Brandon provided a lot of insights to our group and opened my eyes to things I hadn't considered before. Most of all he helped me to believe in myself.

Kevin Maravilla
Junior, Notre Dame de Namur University

Visiting the Google campus really opened my eyes to a different kind of work experience. I want to work in a place where people are passionate about the work they do and Google seems to be a place where passion abides. I truly enjoyed hearing our tour guide professional story over lunch as it demonstrated that there is no one way to reaching your career goals and about the value of being open to opportunities as you never know where they may lead. His open and honest advise resonated with me and I truly felt his desire to see me succeed. I feel more encouraged about my personal career possibilities as a result of this experience at Google. I look forward to one day being on the other side of this kind of sharing experience in helping soon to be college graduates see a bigger picture of the world.

Suleyma Garcia
Senior, San Jose State University

